

Reebok NPC II, white
May 2015. First spotted pieces. Photographed as found on the floor after putting on the new pair of shoes. No specific thoughts. Later architectural questions. The inside/outside thing. Modernism. Then monads<sup>1</sup>. Le plie. Shoe bought during exhibition installation. Seen in a window shop. Had to go look for a bank since cash only. Bad moment to spend time on shoes. No necessary purchase. Pure pleasure. Looks a bit like a brain. Brain of shoe. Made to be trashed. The absurd (brain of) shoe.

Asics Gel Kayano 21, black (2x)
Same shoe bought twice because a fox stole one single shoe while I was swimming in a lake. A friend saw the fox running away with the shoe. Later the fox came back to the beach. We tried to follow him. We took a picture of the fox<sup>2</sup>. We did not find the shoe.

Unknown orthopaedic sandal (1/2x)
Single piece from an orthopaedic footwear store. There was wastepaper collection on that day. They only had this one single piece left. Maybe it came off as they brought away the waste paper.

Various pieces from the waste paper container of an Outdoor Store (Saturday sales)
5/five. Compact and extended condition. Equilibration.

Gore-Tex fabric sewed inside out. Waterproof from the inside. Water-permeable from the outside. Filled with gristly old wood. Extensible and wrinkly.

<sup>2</sup>The fox who stole the shoe.
